The Orange Celebration.

The Orange Celebration on the 12th was a great success. The weather was all that was to be desired, although it was a trifle warm.

The crowds started to gather early in the day, and the trains from East and West brought considerable numbers.

The different bands from outside points along with Monitor's band furnished music during the day and evening. Moving Pictures were given in the Orange Hall to large audiences.

The various sports run off during the afternoon and the following is a summary of the events:—

JUDGES

F. O'Connor, W. F. Moorhead,

W. E. Reed.

Lodges from Alberta and Saskatchewan were represented and the parade to the grounds was well filled, many of the lodges carrying large banners.

The big hall was filled to capacity at night for the dance, and excellent music was provided.

The town was decorated with flags, trees and arches, and made a fine appearance.

Several special constables were sworn in, but there were no disturbances, and outside of keeping the crowds off the track the police had a quiet time.

One noticeable feature of the day was the absence of drunkenness and everybody commented on the difference in conditions when the bars were open on previous sports days.

The Monitor Band was at the station to welcome those who came by train and also gave several concerts during the day on the grounds and in town at night.

LADY URSULA'S HUSBAND

BY
FLORENCE WARDENWord, Luck & Co., Limited

"You are happy then?" asked Lady Emmeline, without, however, feeling any doubt as to what the answer would be.

The reply was overwhelming in sincerity and force.

"Happy?" sighed Lady Ursula, catching her breath. "Oh, my dear, my dear, I am too happy. I feel as if it couldn't be right to be so happy as I am, while there are so many people in the world who are miserable."

Lady Emmeline stole a hand over her sister's, touched by the deep feeling in her tone.

"Oh, I'm so glad! And is he—is your husband—really—er—er—as nice as he seemed?"

Lady Ursula smiled into her face. "I see," she said. "Tom has been telling you the silly fables that someone else told him. Well, dear, you can dismiss them from your mind. Paul is no saint—he always told me he was not. But he is a chivalrous, honorable, kind-hearted gentleman; hasty when he is wounded, but eager to beg forgiveness and to make amends, and the most charming companion in the world."

"I'm so glad!" sighed out Lady Emmeline. "So awfully, awfully glad!"

Upon the earl and countess no fraction of the change for the better in the appearance of their elder daughter was lost.

Lady Gravenhurst, commenting upon the improvement in her to her husband when they were alone, summed up the change in a short sentence:

"Marriage has made her human, John."

"I wish," said the earl, "that it had been a human Englishman instead of an American who had brought about the change."

Lady Gravenhurst smiled.

"Well, we shan't mind to what country he belongs, shall we, if he makes our child happy?" said she.

Lord Gravenhurst looked anxiously at his wife.

"And now, Emmeline seems to be restless too," he said. "If she goes to Oare Court again, I'm afraid she may pick up another person of the same nationality. Really, I don't think I should care to have a second American in the family."

"Well, well, I've heard nothing about anything of that sort," said Lady Gravenhurst.

Perhaps she was perfectly sincere. But she certainly must have heard from her son that Lady Emmeline and Hugo Jackson, Lord Eastling's friend and college chum, seemed to find a good deal of interest in each other's society.

In the meantime the visit to Winterland was an unequalled success; and Lady Ursula, after visiting all her poor people and finding a little to her dismay, that they were all quite contented with the arrangements which she had made to fill the blank made by her husband's westward journey to the Midlands, where she found Oare Court fuller than ever, and Mr. and Mrs. Oare-Jackson, the host and hostess, more than ever at a loss to know where all the people collected by their children had come from.

Politics, of a strong Tory sort, now formed the very atmosphere one breathed in the great new house. Mr. Oare-Jackson himself, who had been a Radical, a Socialist, and a destroyer of the most virulent kind before he had anything to lose, had perhaps not reformed, but at any rate he was now silent amid the din; and as his house-laws were strongly Conservative, his daughters ranged themselves on the same side; and Hugo, who was the only member of the party conservative by conviction, and them all whither he would.

When Paul arrived he was seized and interrogated as to his principles, with feeble results. He declared that he took no interest in politics, and altogether declined to allow himself to be dragged into a prominent position over the election.

At the same time, he good-naturedly put his services at the disposal of Hugo as an assistant secretary, or any other position in which he could be a silent worker for the cause.

In the meantime, he was, as before, a most popular member of the household, near the same spot, Hugo, who was passing the end of the corridor, made his presence known by breaking into an air from "The Sunshine Girl" before he passed out of sight.

Paul, however, appeared quite unconcerned. And as, by that time, Lady Ursula had arrived, Hugo thought that he might leave the task of looking after her frivolous husband to the bride.

He said nothing, however; but when he found Paul conversing confidentially with the girl on the following evening, near the same spot, Hugo, who was passing the end of the corridor, made his presence known by breaking into an air from "The Sunshine Girl" before he passed out of sight.

Paul, however, appeared quite unconcerned. And as, by that time, Lady Ursula had arrived, Hugo thought that he might leave the task of looking after her frivolous husband to the bride.

The dinners were gay, and noisier than ever now that, for once, they were dazing in their excitement to talk about. The ladies were more handsomely gowned than ever, and Lady Ursula, as she had herself predicted, looked none the less distinguished for wearing no jewels.

The Honorable Mrs. Finchden wore her celebrated necklace of five rows of pearls, and all the other ladies were displaying of gems. Lady Ursula, grown handsomer since her happy marriage, looked all the more beautiful for having no pearls round her fair throat, no diamonds in the braids of her soft fair hair.

Discussion was animated even before the ladies left the dinner-table, for on the following day there was to be a big meeting, and not only was the Conservative candidate to speak from the platform in a hall of the nearest town, but Hugo was to make his first speech, and there was to be a great gathering of friends on the platform to support them.

He was to be to present, and he had promised to bring his sister, Lady Emmeline.

It was in vain, however, that pressure was brought to bear upon Paul. He was too busy to make a speech himself. He was told that his easy and popular manners would be a great asset, and was subjected to a raking fire of inquiry as to whether he was a Radical, for him to be so disabliging.

And it was then that he made a surprising answer that his father had been a Whig.

"A Whig! I didn't know they called themselves Whigs in America!" he called Hugo's swift comment.

"They don't," exclaimed Henry Fifth quickly.

Paul corrected himself rather snappishly.

"We don't use the word, but we have got the thing over there," he explained briefly. "Anyhow, I don't care to take any part in politics."

Even Lady Ursula was surprised at his obstinacy, though she made neither comment nor appeal.

"We're going to have a representative gathering on the platform," urged Hugo, "and such a lot of them that there would be no fear of your being too prominent, if that is what your modesty is afraid of."

"You'd better leave me in the hall itself to lead the applause," said Paul.

"You'd be much happier on the platform," persisted Hugo. "We're going to have some very smart people."

Lady Ursula, who was watching her husband, still perplexed by his obstinacy, saw a strange change pass over his countenance at the name. Even Hugo noticed it.

"Do you know Lady Creslow?" he asked suddenly.

"I've heard the name," answered Paul. "A Yorkshire family, aren't they?"

Yes, Mrs. Morton Creslow is one of the most prominent in his part of the world. But the family has been unfortunate. Mrs. Morton has been paralysed for years, and his eldest son is in an asylum or something. But Lady Creslow is a very influential personage, and quite capable of sustaining the family credit as long as she lives. It seemed to Lady Ursula that Paul listened to this as if he knew it already. But he said nothing, only replying, when urged again to sit on the platform, that he would rather remain in obscurity in the body of the hall.

Canada's Record

How an American Paper Views Work Accomplished by Canada in Enforcing Prohibition Measures

Before it had received the news of the splendid success of the prohibition movement in the Province of Ontario, the "New Republic" which is the official organ of the American Anti-Saloon League, had an editorial entitled "Canada's wine response" in which the situation, this side of the boundary line, was referred to in the following terms:

Canada as an integral part of the British Empire, is in the midst of a struggle to the death for National existence.

The best blood of the Dominion is being scattered all over the hills of northern France. The fathers and mothers gladly give up their sons, and girls give up their sweethearts, and wives give up their husbands. The tax payers dig deep into their pockets and all wonder what else they can do.

While patriotism is ablaze from Vancouver to Quebec what are the rum sellers doing? They are intervening to balk their country's efforts. Did Canada snivel and cringe and stutter and wriggle and crawl concerning this? Not much.

Alberta led off by wiping out the saloons of the entire province.

Then along came Saskatchewan with an anti-bar law, closing every dram shop in her boundaries.

Then the people of Manitoba enacted a state wide prohibition law with a two to one majority.

Then the Legislature of Nova Scotia met and enacted a state wide law for that province.

Now British Columbia is planning to close the distillery traffic from her boundaries.

In the hour of public trouble whether it be in a municipal riot or whether it be in the world wide war, the first step necessary to success is to close the dirty and disloyal dram shop.

Like the Typhoid, the saloon is always an evil, a source of trouble, but this evil is accentuated in the hour of public distress.

Then the Legislature of Nova Scotia met and enacted a state wide law for that province.

Now British Columbia is planning to close the distillery traffic from her boundaries.

Something About Heavy Guns

The German Seventeen-inch Naval Gun Theory Has at Last Been Exploded

As to the big 17-inch naval gun theory, that was soon exploded. The French had found the position of the gun that was firing into Dunkirk and photographed it. It was found to be not a naval gun at all, neither was it of 17-inch calibre. It was only a German 15-inch siege howitzer embedded in concrete and rigidly set at its maximum elevation so that it could not be actually aimed, but merely fired haphazard in the general direction of Dunkirk. Its purpose was merely to frightfulness. People in French towns seen got used to these big shells, their effect soon wears off, and they do not cause so much damage after all as one would be led to suppose. Thus the theory of Mr. Douglas rebounded on his own gun.

Common sense, also, would have told such experts that even if the Germans had ships armed with the 17-inch naval guns, such monster pieces would only be handicaps. As guns vary according to the cube of their calibre, it can easily be figured out that a 17-inch gun would weigh about double the weight of the 15-

inch gun. So at the most four 17-inch guns could only be mounted on a ship like the Queen Elizabeth, carrying 17-inch guns. But owing to the curvature of the earth, the maximum range at sea is about 19 miles. Now, these 15-inch guns fire extremely of positively at such a range, and there is not anything on the sea that could float any length of time once these 15-inch guns got the drop on it. The London Truth says that when the Queen Elizabeth was given her trials at target shooting the marks were 19 miles away, and she perforated every mark at the first broadside.

But with four 17-inch guns firing about eight 15-inch guns you would have, giving the same rate of fire, the Queen Elizabeth actually firing two shots to the other's one, and she would put the other out of action before it could do much if any damage to her, for she would have superiority of fire right from the start, and smother the opposing warship under a hail of shells.—From the Toronto World.

Report of the Auditors to the Shareholders of the Merchants Bank of Canada.

In accordance with the provisions of Sub-sections 19 and 20 of Section 56 of the Bank Act, we have examined the above Balance Sheet with the Books of Account and other records of the Bank at the Chief Office and with the signed returns from the Branches and Agencies.

We have checked the cash and verified the securities of the Bank at the Chief Office against the entries in regard thereto in the books of the Bank as on April 29th, 1916, and at a different time during the year, and found them to agree with such entries. We have also attended at some of the Branches during the year and checked the cash and verified the securities held at the date of our attendance and found them to agree with the entries in the books of the Bank with the signed returns from the Branches and Agencies.

We have obtained all the information and explanations we have required. In our opinion the entries in the Balance Sheet are properly drawn up so as to show a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs according to the best of our information and the explanations given to us and as shown by the books of the Bank.

Note and Comment

The most reassuring thing about modern women is that in spite of all the hubalaloo raised over them during the last few years the vast majority of them go along in a normal sort of way, making the right sort of sweethearts, wives and mothers.

Armand Lavergne says that if conscription were adopted he would serve. After all Lavergne's position is not without reason. "If you want me, come and take me," he says to the government. Probably that is the attitude of thousands of eligible Canadian men who have not volunteered.

We admire the optimism of the Hon. Rupert Guinness. He has come to Canada to enlist 5,000 recruits for the Royal Navy, and expects to get them.

Germany wants peace before the winter, if by hook or by crook she can force or manipulate a settlement which the kaiser could plausibly represent to his subjects as an honorable and even victorious peace. The allies can have no such settlement. Its effect on German temper could only lead sooner or later to another outbreak sooner or later of arrogant psychology and militarist ambition. Nevertheless, to secure such a settlement before the winter, Berlin will move all earth and the nether regions. For Germany as it is "now or never." For the allies their principle is "never again."

One sorrowful aspect of these frequent showers is the deprivation of the householder's recreation of watering the garden.

Of course the privilege of pushing the mower or pulling weeds is still left to him.

An optimist when he has to take a dose of quinine, carefully places the powder in a capsule. He then swallows it along with a mouthful of jelly and says the world is full of sweetness and joy. The pessimist, on the other hand takes his quinine in powder form. He is careful to get all the bitterness before swallowing. Then he takes a mouthful of castor oil for a chaser and says that life is a beastly bore.

As the Allies advance continues the casualties will increase and the need of more men will become more and more pressing. It should be more difficult for able bodied men of military age with few home ties, than ever to hang back.

"God bless the man who first invented sleep,
So Sancho Panza said, and so say I;
And bless him also that he didn't keep
His great discovery to himself, nor try
To make it, as the lucky fellow might.
A close monopoly by patent right.

Yes—bless the man who first invented sleep
(I really can't avoid the iteration.)
But blast the man, with curses loud and deep,
Whate'er the rascal's name, or age, or station.
Who first invented and went around advising
That artificial cut off—early rising.

Pessimist, what say you now,
Have you heeded the latest?
You must now at least allow
That you're not a statist.
And the Germans now must own
That its time for them to groan:
So, boys, be up and off to see
Our march to Berlin on the spree.

Herr Spratt could eat no fat,
His frau could eat no lean,
And so, between them both you see
For lunch they split a bean.

When Mark Twain in his early days was editor of a Missouri paper, a superstitious subscriber wrote to him saying that he had found a spider in his paper, and asking him whether it was a sign of bad or good luck. The humorist printed the following answer: "Old Subscriber: finding a spider in your paper was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising, so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

WHEN LORENA BUYS A HAT

Before Lorena buys a hat,
A gown, or anything like that,
She hunts a mirror, then and there,
And tries it on with anxious care;
And even brings a friend or two
To study every point of view.

To see if its becoming.
But I was wondering today
If, when she has a word to say,
Or something she would like to do,
She studies every point of view—
This side and that, in front, behind—
Before the mirror of her mind.
To see if it's becoming.

The Liquor Act is working fine these days in Alberta. In the cities a great change is noticed and the police are having a hard time to keep busy, and they are wondering what to do with the cells in the different police stations as there is practically no drunkenness on the streets and therefore nobody to occupy these cells.

All the merchants speak highly of the change in their business since the 1st, and all are doing more business than ever before.

The officers in charge of the different overseas battalions find that the men are more prompt and obedient since the bars were closed and few, if any, of the men are in trouble from outstaying their leave, which was a common occurrence previously. There has been several convictions in the cities for breaches of the Act, but things are moving along fine all over the country.

Second Thoughts

Mr. Gnages—I suppose you women think second thoughts are best. Mrs. Gnages—Not always. You may remember I refused you the first time you asked me to marry you.—Philadelphia Record.

Just One More Direct Message

NEW BRUNSWICK WOMAN SAYS
USE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Mrs. Patrick Williams Tells How Her Headache and Weakness Vanished When She Used the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy, Dodd's Kidney Pills.

St. Sosime, Kent Co., N. B. (Special).—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the great relief from headache and weakness I found in Dodd's Kidney Pills."

This is the message Mrs. Patrick Williams of this place sends to suffering women all over Canada. Like many other women she dislikes talking about her troubles, but she feels she would not be doing right to let others suffer when she had learned from her own experience how great is the relief and how easy is the cure to be found in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Nine-tenths of the weakness and suffering women bear so bravely come from sick kidneys. Sick or disordered kidneys fall in their duty of straining the impurities out of the blood. This means that these impurities, these seeds of disease, are carried to all parts of the body. The natural cure is Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure sick kidneys.

Canadian Timber Values

According to a recent Commerce report the values of the various classes of timber produced in Canada in 1914, together with the values of the forest products, total $176,672,000, being divided as follows: Lumber, lath and shingles, $67,500,000; fire wood, $50,500,000; pulpwood, $15,500,000; posts and rails, $9,500,000; cross ties, $9,000,000; square timber exported, $400,000; sawpulp, $1,900,000; poles, $700,000; logs exported, $850,000; tanning material, $22,000; round mining timbers, $500,000; miscellaneous exports, $300,000; miscellaneous products, $10,000,000.

Proud Skippers, These

Masters of Trawlers Despite Seaman-ship of Navy

Every trawler is distinctive, and the whole character of the crew and of the life on board depends on the captain. These skippers are types who seem to have survived from an age long since gone by. You can always tell a North Sea trawler from a West country one. The North Sea skippers seem stern and taciturn, whereas the West countrymen, mostly Devonshire men, seem genial, loquacious. All are, however, delightfully independent and express their views on things in general in a manner which makes naval officers tremble for the discipline of the service. They love to criticize everything. The skipper of a trawler never will admit that any officer in the navy is a real seaman. They will stoutly maintain that seaman-ship is a lost art, which can now only be found among themselves, and they love to hold forth on the handling of great battleships as they make their way into narrow harbors or take up difficult anchorages, pointing out how much better they could have done the job themselves. They love to grumble at everything, and without a grievance they would be miserable.—Liverpool Courier.

Miller's Worm Powders were devised to promptly relieve children who suffer from the ravages of worms. It is a simple preparation warranted to destroy stomachic and intestinal worms without shock or injury to the most sensitive system. They act thoroughly and painlessly, and though in some cases they may cause vomiting, that is an indication of their powerful action and not of any nauseating property.

Queen Mother Saw Game

One of the best stories illustrating the practical sympathy of Queen Alexandra is told by Lady Randolph Churchill. Not long ago the Queen Mother stopped her motor car in Hyde Park in order to watch a game of football which some soldiers were enjoying near the Serpentine. No one recognized her. The same evening Her Majesty sent a subscription to the fund for giving footballs to soldiers in training.

Western City War Census

As a basis for urging the men of Winnipeg to rally to the colors a voluntary committee made a canvas of the city and as a result they state that there are only 4,500 single men and widowers without children, between the ages of 18 and 45 years in Winnipeg, who are eligible as recruits, according to the military registration census which has just been completed. Of the total 1,533 are of Canadian and 1,846 of British birth, 204 of American, 996 of Allies, and 535 of enemy nations.

There recently entered a Washington shop a dusky person who announced that he wished to purchase a razor. "Safety?" asked the clerk. "No, sah," was the decided response. "I desire it for social usage."

Clean Stomach, Clear Mind.—The stomach is the workshop of the vital functions and when it gets out of order the whole system clogs in sympathy. The spirits flag, the mind droops and work becomes impossible. The first care should be to restore healthful action of the stomach and the best preparation for that purpose is Parmentier's Food Pills. (Genuine) use for years has won them a leading place in medicine. A trial will attest their value.

French War Humor

French racing horses' names are now almost all inspired by the war. The names of favorite generals, Joffre and French, for instance, are common; battles in which the allies came out on top find favor, such as La Marne; Tannenberg is in the field; while names of French cannon, "Seventy-five," "Hundred and five," Rimmahlo are very popular. French love of irony is seen in such names as Chiffon de Papier (scrap of paper), Finis, Teutonice and La Censure.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one druggist who science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing his work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Cure that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for testimonials.

Stingy Millionaires

Mr. Justice Craig, speaking in Toronto, said that "millionaires are giving far less than the men who have a few thousands," and he knew of one millionaire who is keeping back good, healthy sons and giving practically nothing to any fund, while his neighbor has crippled himself financially and given five sons to the Empire besides. Conscription is needed in that millionaire's family. It is a fact not always borne in mind that a poor man who gives a dollar often gives more proportionately than a rich man who gives a thousand.—Ottawa Journal.

Said one of our leading merchants recently, after reading the war news: "I see Germany is to have a food dictator. I've been married to one for some years."

SPLITTING PAINS IN THE MUSCLES CURED DRIVEN OUT QUICKLY BY "NERVILINE"

Rheumatic Pains Go—Suffering Ceases; Cure Comes In Even Chronic Cases

For aching bones and sore muscles nothing will soothe away the pain like Nerviline.

For nerve-wracking twinges in the muscles, for torturing backache or lumbago, you'll find Nerviline is full of amazing power.

You see, Nerviline has the power—it's about five times stronger than ordinary remedies, and can penetrate very deeply. It contains juices and extracts of certain herbs that give it a strange power to drive out congestion, inflammation or pain. You are safe in using Nerviline. Just rub it on—it won't blister or burn, and can do nothing but good.

Whenever there is pain or suffering Nerviline will go and drive it out. It penetrates to every cell of a sore muscle; it sinks to the heart of every stiff sore joint; it searches out the pain of rheumatism quickly.

Give Nerviline a trial. See how fast it will limber your lame back, how quickly it will break up a bad cold or ease a sore throat.

The best family pain-remedy ever made is Nerviline. Forty years of great success proves this.

For emergent ills, which the doctor isn't handy, there is nothing better than the 50c family size bottle; trial size 25c., all dealers or the Catarrh-zone Co., Kingston, Canada.

Improving Butter Prices

The season of 1916 will likely see the largest output of butter Western Canada has ever yet marketed. C. P. Marker, dairy commissioner for Alberta, estimates that the make in that province will run 9,000,000 pounds this year as against 7,400,000 pounds last year, which was a very favorable season. Saskatchewan is preparing for a big make, as is Manitoba. In all three distinct steps have been made to further improve the quality of the creamery product and thereby extend and consolidate the market. It is said 90 per cent. of the cream reaching Alberta creameries this year will be pasteurized, which treatment adds greatly to the keeping quality of the butter and seems essential for long shipments.

Hammers

Hammers were originally fashioned from the model of an outstretched human arm and fist.

A camel's hind legs will reach its head, round its chest or on to its hump.

Captured Their Captors

"Turning the tables" in war times is a form of surprise not at all unknown to an army. A good apropos of the fact comes from Petrograd. "In the fighting in the region west of Aschka the Turks surrounded a Russian detachment formed of reserve soldiers. These reservists were taken into captivity by the Turks, but, preferring a glorious death to shameful surrender, with their non-commissioned officers at their head, fell upon the Turkish escort, overcame it, and forced it to join their brave regiment!"

The suggestion is being put forward that a flag should be designed as the Standard of the Allied Nations.

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother (Ivory's) Worm Exterminator to give relief. Its effects are sure and lasting.

Special constables in Britain number 124,646, of whom there is a daily average of 16,831 on duty.

"Thank you, I will take the Nerve Food with me."

"I don't want to miss a single dose, because it is doing me so much good. My nerves were so bad that I could not rest or sleep, and would get up in the morning feeling tired out."

"Besides that, I frequently had severe nervous headaches and got so cross and irritable that every little noise would set my nerves on edge. I did not seem to have any energy or strength, and the slightest exertion would use me up entirely."

"Then a friend told me of the benefit she obtained from using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I decided to give it a trial. It was not long till I found that I was sleeping better and enjoying my meals. There did not seem to be so much to worry me, and I began to find a new pleasure in life. It is wonderful the way the Nerve Food is building up my health and strength, and since I have been using it I have found out that many of my lady friends have had a similar experience."

This is the way women everywhere are talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Seldom has any treatment ever aroused so much favorable comment. While natural and gentle in action, this food cure is wonderfully potent in building up the run-down system. Ask your friends about it and put it to the test when in need of restorative treatment.

More Severity Now.

Ottawa, July 7.—Action is likely to be taken shortly by the military council to deal a little more severely with officers and men who put the country to expense and detract from their own efficiency by indulging in spree or other immoral conduct, resulting in consequent sickness and absence from duty. Hereafter when illness is found to be due to the carelessness or immorality of the men themselves, commanding officers will have authority to cancel part of the regular pay and allowances until the culprit has reported fit for duty again.

Found dyed sausages.

Ottawa, July 7.—According to a report by inland revenue inspectors, there are four dealers in Ottawa who are selling sausages colored with dyes, in contravention of the law.

The department has made an examination of 141 samples collected broadcast throughout the country, especially to detect dyes and preservatives. In 13 samples the use of coloring was established, five in Montreal, four in Ottawa, two in Toronto and one each in Hamilton and Windsor. Samples of sausages collected in western Canada, were all found to be free from dyes.

IRISH RANGERS

Ottawa, July 7.—The minister of militia has authorized the Irish Rangers, of Montreal, under command of Col. P.J. Trihey to recruit throughout Ontario. The idea is to enable the batt. to recruit speedily up to full strength and give Irish Catholics in Ontario an opportunity to join a battalion made up of their own nationality and religion.

New Russo-Japanese Agreement Very Binding.

Tokio, July 7.—The Japanese foreign office today announced as the substance of the Russo-Japanese convention signed at Petrograd on July 3rd, the following:

"First: Japan will take part in no arrangement or political combination directed against Russia. Russia will take part in no arrangement or political combination directed against Japan."

"Second: In case the territorial rights or special interests in the Far East of one of the contracting parties which are recognised by the other contracting parties, are menaced, Japan and Russia will consult with each other on measures to adopt with a view to supporting or extending assistance for safeguarding and defence of these rights and interests."

Train Two Divisions Ready for Trenches in Canada.

Ottawa, July 7.—A proposal is under consideration by the minister of militia to mobilize and train in Canada two com-

THE GLORIOUS PART PLAYED BY GREAT BRITAIN IN WORLD WAR

ALL RESOURCES OF EMPIRE THROWN INTO FIGHT

Famous American War Correspondent Writes of Fighting Quality Of British Troops, and Pays a Tribute to Organization And Work of War Department

(By Frederick Palmer in Collier's)

Of course there are some people who think that anybody who says a good word for the English must be what is known as an Anglo-maniac who uses broad a's, speaks of "dear old Lunnun" as they do on the vaudeville stage, and holds his breath in awe at the mention of a duke. I am one of blood which has fought the British twice in the last century. I am right cause. My ideas of how the British fight; and the part they have played in this war were formed not in the company of dukes or in dear old Lunnun from the gossip of the Strand, but at the British front. I think that the British are entitled to fair play and to be judged by what they have done rather than by the way they talk.

Then in two months the British had lost more killed and wounded than their original force; in six months, more than the total of their standing army. They had lacked machine guns and guns of heavy calibre; so had the French. The English had not only to train men who had never shouldered a rifle, but to equip them. Russia and France, too, lacked sufficient uniforms at the outset of the war for all the soldiers they had. From the United States, the British and the Russian army came the call to manufacturing England for arms and uniforms. England was the mint, the foundry, the workshop, must be a bottomless source of supply—while every demand of Jellico's had to be met. She plodded on steadily, if not brilliantly, criticizing no one but herself.

Though the British had supposed that their part was to command the sea, three million men, and to cross the Channel or go farther overseas and fight. This is a different thing from volunteering to fight in your own country against an invader. Mind, these three million did not have to be ordered to fight. They went of their own free will, carpenters, farmers, costermongers, doctors, lawyers, millionaires and laborers, with every able bodied man of Oxford and Cambridge and other universities, and great public schools offering himself. History has afforded nothing finer than this outpouring, and never was there an effort more depreciated by those who made it.

For the lack of guns the British in France had to fight with flesh and blood against machine guns, and flesh and blood against machine killing. France needed help; England gave all she had to give—the lives of her men.

One reason they had to hold a short line was for many months they had to do it with flesh and blood, not with adequate guns or adequate shells for the guns, though they have the shells now and are getting the guns. Another reason was that they had the famous Ypres salient, one of the bloodiest parts of the line.

If you don't think so, ask any German who has fought there. Again, after this war, don't make the mistake.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer for a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every winter rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. (confidential) for free advice which will prove helpful.

take of depreciating the British soldier by German soldiers. The highest praise you can hear for the British army is from Germans.

The English talk of "muddling," but it seems to me that they do very much less muddling than they advertise. The error so highly criticized at Looz was made by the German staff only a few days ago. In fact, the Germans have been guilty of it several times, but they say nothing and go on. Berlin is silent while tongues wag in London.

Losses of Pigs

Valuable Information on the Care and Handling of Pigs

A severe winter is usually followed by reports of heavy losses of young pigs. This year is no exception to the rule. Mr. W. Stevens, Provincial Live Stock Commissioner for Alberta, has visited a number of farms from which reports of this kind have come. Although he does not claim to have discovered the precise cause in every instance, he does not hesitate to classify the causes, in the majority of cases, under the following headings:

Farrowed in February.—The losses among pigs farrowed in February, are, as a rule, heavy. In seasons when the weather is as cold as it was during last February the losses are particularly heavy. This fact alone would account for many deaths.

Little Light, and Less Ventilation in Pens.—Animals confined within poorly lighted and ill ventilated houses cannot thrive, and young animals cannot develop strength nor resist disease in such places. Pneumonia, the cause of the most of the deaths among the early farrowed animals that were thus cared for.

Feeding the dam too heavily after farrowing.—The sow can eat less in winter, and many farmers yielded to the temptation to feed it to their brood sows. Barley develops fat but not bone and muscle. Bone and muscle, but not fat, are what the young animal requires in order to enable it to avoid danger and keep from being laid on and suffocated in the nest.

Feeding the dam to heavily after farrowing.—The sow can eat less in winter, and many farmers yielded to the temptation to feed it to their brood sows. Barley develops fat but not bone and muscle. Bone and muscle, but not fat, are what the young animal requires in order to enable it to avoid danger and keep from being laid on and suffocated in the nest.

Swine growers who have suffered losses of young pigs should write to the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, and ask for a copy of live stock pamphlet entitled "Preparing for the Pig Crop," also pamphlet entitled "The Suckling Period."

The Australian Premier.—The indomitable Labor prime minister of Australia has certain qualities which are rare in British public life. He has courage; he has firmness, he has eloquence. He is not blessed with obsolete formulas; he does not live in the rigid artificialities of the House of Commons; he knows his own mind and he is not a moral miasma of a political impet. His deeds and his speeches have touched the people of this country by their force and splendour. They have shown him to be as much in earnest as our ministers are faint-hearted and as simple as they are pompous and long-winded. He always speaks straight to the heart. He does not put off till tomorrow what should be done today, and earlier in this war he set a great example to the home government by shattering the influence of Germany in Australia.—London Daily Mail.

Wireless Danger Signals for Trains.—A curious invention is being shown at the 1916 exhibition of the National Railway Association in Chicago for controlling trains by wireless. Danger signals are flashed to the train by a touch on a key. The wireless, worked in connection with an automatic speed control, applies the air brakes automatically; whether the engineer sees the signal or not, and reduces the speed to the desired maximum.

Centrality.—If you borrow money from a fellow you meet him everywhere you go as long as you owe him, but if he borrows from you months and months go by, it seems before you ever see him again.—Macon News.

Suffer Most Just Before the Battle

Mixture of Fear, Doubt and Expectancy Proves Unnerving to Many

The following interesting article, giving physiological study of a battle, was written by a German school teacher, who since he has been killed on the west front. The article, which appears in the German papers, has caused considerable comment.

"To describe the sensations, the emotions and the innermost feelings of the soul of a soldier in battle is an unusually interesting but difficult task. While the battle is raging a soldier is beset and agitated by thousands of thoughts that flash like lightning through his brain, but it is only during the remarkable calm that comes after a battle that he is enabled to analyze them. As I have participated in thirty-six battles, and in many others, both on the eastern and western fronts, I have been in a position to make many observations and have made a study of the soul of the soldier. It is a great subject for the physiologist and one that opens a mine of valuable information.

The troops receive orders at night to prepare for a charge the next morning. The first thought is, is this real? Sooner or later, it seems like a dream. It is the same thought that stirs the soul in any great event in life, be it one of joy or one of sorrow. It does not seem real.

However, when the soldier does realize that it is no nightmare, he begins to think of the likelihood of death claims, and every one of the inevitable indescribable fear begins to agitate the soul. The awful thought pesters him that he will go to his death and leave home and every one he loves, and that which is dear in a moment of time. He ponders over the subject of immortality, and wonders if death comes whether it will mean eternal darkness and annihilation.

"To one who is in the prime of life, who has energy and vigor, and who is himself cannot offer torture to equal the terrorizing doubts that assail the soul in those dreadful moments before a battle.

Then, too, the thoughts come that we have not made the most of life; that there is so much which we would still like to do, that we have lost the opportunity how different we would shape our life in the future.

"All night long the troops move to the front, and all night long we think of God and the uncertainty that lies directly before us.

"Morning comes. It is a most beautiful morning, the sun shining warm and bright. The notes of a German song are wafted on the still air. It is as if the angels were all joined in the chorus. It is then that we forget all our doubts and fears. A new life seems to be born within us. All fear and anxiety are driven ready to go down to the gates of death unafraid.

"And then the battle. The bullets began to whistle. In those first moments every soldier naturally looks for some sheltered place for protection. Nervousness and fear are remarkably calm. Though comrades are killed on all sides we never for a moment think of being hit by a bullet ourselves, or of the possibility of running toward the enemy. All feeling, all thought, all emotion, all sensation is obliterated. In the crash and thunder of battle the feeling of hate becomes uppermost. We are seized with a frenzy of rage, and our one thought is to meet the enemy face to face and annihilate him. As this hate is mingled with a certain feeling of patriotism and love for the Fatherland, the last of battle is developed in such a manner as to quiet our nerves and forget all about danger and death.

"The battle has been fought and won. The soul experiences an indescribable peace, but when we begin to see our broken ranks and make count of our fallen comrades painful sensations follow. Then only do we realize what danger we so calmly faced, and a wave of thoughtfulness warns our blood and body.

"The feelings and sensations on emerging from a battle are like those of convalescence from a serious illness. The tired soul longs for peace and rest, and the soldier falls into a deep, sound, dreamless sleep, in which all the fear, doubt and storm of the time are forgotten."

The Expensive Married Man.—One of the most difficult points for the government is to balance the value of a married man recruit against his value as a taxpayer. Every married recruit means in addition to his upkeep by the State, an allowance for his family and relief at government expense to meet his rent, insurance and other liabilities. At the same time a direct diminution of the national revenue by the amount of his income tax, apart from his other contributions to the loss of the wealth of the country.—London Daily Mail.

A Gardener Peer.—Lord Redcliffe, whose memoirs are arousing so much attention in Britain, is one of the greatest living authorities on horticulture. He is responsible for the present state of the gardens at Buckingham Palace, which work he took up at the special request of King Edward.

The word "elove" is from the Latin "clavus," meaning a nail, cloves being like nails in appearance.

Tribute to Late Earl Kitchener

Is Praised for His Great Work as an Empire Builder

At a New York theatre the other day the film "Britain Prepared" was being shown. The face of the late Earl Kitchener was flashed on the screen. The orchestra began the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The audience rose, in utter silence, and stood while the verse was played.

A tribute, such as that, completely spontaneous, by people of another nation is remarkable. It is evidence that his personality left a mark upon the world.

It is noticeable, in all the American tributes paid to Kitchener, by Theodore Roosevelt, Gen. Leonard Wood, former Ambassador Choate, and many others, that it was Kitchener's work in Empire-building that chiefly commanded their admiration. Kitchener's share of the "white man's burden" in Egypt, Africa and India is the outstanding note in their tributes.

Another notable tribute was paid Kitchener in the parliament of United South Africa. It will be remembered that immediately after peace was signed at Pretoria, Kitchener sent a message to the Boers expressing his admiration for their gallantry and bravery in the long war.

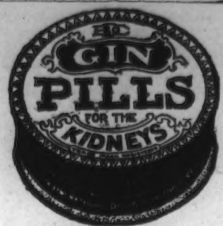

The Chicago Daily News, in an appreciative article, on the day of his death, recalled an interview Kitchener gave while in Chicago some years ago. In this Kitchener expressed the view that the war of food and the necessity of importing it was the chief factor in making war. The nation which had not sufficient supplies of food of its own, he pointed out, was continually gazing with envious eyes upon the nations which had. As a lover of peace, he said, he had never home and abroad seen the vast fields of grain in the middle west, and took equal pleasure from the fact that across the boundary, in Canada, there were possibilities of equally great production of foodstuffs.

Roosevelt's tribute is worth quoting:

"Six years ago I passed through the Sudan and was more deeply impressed than I can well express by the extraordinary benefits secured to the natives of the country by Lord Kitchener's conquest and the administration of himself and his lieutenant and successor, Gen. Wingate. He rescued it from a condition of chronic slaughter and rapine, under which the population diminished by one-half, and the country was a waste of the younger children over nine-tenths died of disease or starvation. The result of the conquest was to establish absolute peace and justice under the orderly reign of law.

"Industry flourished amazingly, slavery and the oppression of weaker tribes were completely abolished; schools were established everywhere and the Sudan entered upon a career of peace, prosperity and justice, which it has never before known in its history."—Regina Province.

Churchill's Stick.—One of Mr. Winston Churchill's greatest treasures is the gold-mounted cane that was given him by King Edward as a wedding present. Once Mr. Churchill, when staying in Paris, left the cane in a railway train. It cost him a lengthy telegram and a big fee for a special messenger to recover it.

Regulate Kidneys AND Relieve Constipation

Gin Pills are acknowledged to have the largest sale of any proprietary medicine in Canada—an achievement solely due to their remarkable action as a Kidney and Bladder remedy.

But users of Gin Pills have discovered that this invaluable remedy also acts as a mild cathartic. The evidence of hundreds of letters we have received establishes the very logical fact that in compounding a medicine to heal and tone up the Kidneys and Bladder certain of the ingredients have a stimulating effect upon the other organs, especially the bowels.

It is important to know, in the case of constipated patients, that Gin Pills do not act harshly on the bowels; there is no gripping, but a gradual and gentle restoration of the function. Try Gin Pills for constipation. Is thus relieving the bowels, you safeguard yourself against possible Kidney trouble.

Gin Pills are 50c a box or 6 boxes for $2.50 at your dealer's. A trial treatment will be sent upon request.

Fire Escape for Horses

A large packing concern across the border has installed an automatic means for opening the doors of its horse stables, which allows the horses to escape at any time of the day or night if there is danger of fire. The device is operated in much the same manner as an automatic sprinkler. When the temperature in the stables rises to a certain point a weight is released which falls on a lever that in turn releases all the doors simultaneously. At the same instant certain noises are made mechanically which frighten the horses from their places. The releasing lever is occasionally operated by hand to give the horses a fire drill. Each horse soon learns to trot from its stall when the door opens and the alarm sounds.
